i have a td5 manual and used to have 300tdi auto. the auto i would prefer driving locally apart from the extra cost of fuel. the manual is better for motorway even with the torque converter the auto felt like it needed another gear on motorway thats why i went for the manual this time and with the manual i decide when the gears change so i can get a little bit more mpg although i liked the auto box if you are planning some long trips i would go for the manual box

Got problems with my td5 auto. When the vehicle is cold I put it into drive and seems to start of in 2nd gear as I pull away it struggles and easily gets up to speed to 30mph without changing gear. Then after driving for 2 mins I come to a stop and it then goes into first gear and won ' t shift out of first for a good 2 mins or longer holding the revs up high .
